Hastily Recognized.

A desire for distinction is a weakness common to humanity. In many cases the desire is so excessive that if fame is not to be had notoriety is welcome. A ludicrous instance is furnished by Captain J. C Powell, formerly in charge of the Florida convict camp. He had gone to a certain town after a batch of prisoners, and went to the court house to find the deputy sheriff.

"He is on the street," said the county clerk, "and is sure to be somewhere between such and such places. You can't possibly miss him."

"But I don't know the gentleman," said the captain. "How am I going to identify him?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the clerk. "Just go ahead until you see the ugliest man you ever laid your eyes on. That's Eminger. There is only one of him in the United States."

Captain Powell walked down the street and began scrutinizing the passersby. In a few minutes he saw a man so phenomenally ugly that he was "petrified with astonishment."

"I hesitated no longer," he says, "but approached the man and addressed him by name. He at once replied, and asked in some surprise how I knew him. I explained, and he burst into a hearty laugh.

"'I pride myself,' he said, 'on being the ugliest man in the United States, and am delighted to know that you recognized me so readily.'"
—Youth's Companion.

English Nomenclature.

It is well for every one crossing the ocean to know beforehand the difference between the use of certain words in England and America. The American says "depot," the Englishman says "station." The American says "ticket office," the Englishman says "booking office." The American says "baggage," the Englishman says "luggage." The American says "I guess," the Englishman says "I fancy." The American says "crackers," the Englishman says "biscuit." The American says "checkers," the Englishman says "draughts." The American says "yeast," the Englishman says "barm." The American calls the close of a meal "dessert," the Englishman calls it "sweets." The American says "sexton," the Englishman says "doorkeeper." The American uses the word "clever" to describe geniality and kindness, the Englishman uses the word "clever" to describe sharpness and talent.

But it is not until you get into Wales that you feel yourself perfectly helpless. If ever there was a land of unpronounceable names, surely Wales is the foremost.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage in Ladies' Home Journal.

Kith and Kin.

"Kith and kin" has become a phrase vaguely applied to express relationship; but "kith" has nothing to do with kinship. "Kith" means "kent folk." It comes from "ken," which is the same as our word "can"—to know. When one can do a thing, one knows how to do it. Evidently our ancestors believed that knowledge is power. The old word for known was "kyth," as the old word for unknown was "unkyth," or uncouth. "Uncouth"—strange, unfamiliar, unusual, unknown—has preserved much of its early meaning in Scotland. Burns uses "uncos" in the sense of news. The "unco guid" are the strangely, marvelously good. "Kith," then, meant kent folk, people with whom one was familiar. The kent folk are the folk we love, and love and familiarity developed out of the word "kith" the curious vocable "kythe," which in course of time underwent considerable phonetic and orthographic changes, but which is still recognizable in the word "cuddle."—Good Words.

The Stiletto Up to Date.

In the pocket of a tailor made gown the swell girl carries her knife. Anybody who thinks this is an ordinary knife such as can be gotten at any shop is mistaken. It is invariably made of gold, and in addition is decorated with some special design. A very original one has a heart of lapis lazuli framed in diamonds set in one corner of the handle, and the owner's name and a curious cipher carved on the other. A very general fancy exists for having the name engraved upon the knife in an exact copy of the way one would write one's own initials.—New York Sun.

Tanning by Electricity.

A French paper tells of a new process of tanning by electricity which, it says, is being used on the skins of stray dogs gathered into the Paris pound. The electric system, it is alleged, transforms the skins into leather in three or four days, against the six or eight months required in the ordinary process, and the leather so tanned is better than that tanned in the ordinary way. It is chiefly used for ladies' fine shoes, and is notable for its soft and delicate qualities.

French Consideration.

Under the main entrance to one of our churches a poor woman, shivering with cold, and holding a baby in her arms, appealed to the charity of passersby. "Why, your infant is of pasteboard!" said a gentleman as he tapped its nose, which sounded hard and resonant. "Oh, I beg your pardon, monsieur! It was so cold I left the real one at home!"—Paris Letter.

HEREDITARY CLERGYMEN.

Ministers of Various Faiths Whose Descendants Were Ministers.

Hereditary clergymen are not uncommon in all religions. A very prominent family among the Jews, the Adlers, have long held high rank in their church. In the last century flourished the Rabbi Beer Adler. He was father of Mordecai Adler, chief rabbi of Hanover, whose son, the Rev. Dr. Nathan Adler, was for a great number of years chief rabbi of England. Dr. Nathan Adler's son, Dr. H. Adler, having been for some years delegate chief rabbi of England, has now succeeded his father.

Thus four generations of the Adler family have held the rabbinate, and a passage in the will of Dr. Nathan Adler points to there being still another generation in the person of the son of the present chief rabbi, carrying out the priestly traditions of the family.

In the Church of Rome the celibacy of the clergy prevents the direct transmission of the priestly office, but there are numerous families—for instance, the Vaughans, to which the archbishop of Westminster belongs—in which one or more members of several generations have become clergymen. The present Cardinal Moran, of Sydney, is nephew and heir of the late Cardinal Cullen, of Dublin, and no less than twenty-seven of his near relatives are priests in Ireland, America and the colonies.

In the Church of England such cases are very common. The clerical family of Collins was founded in 1533 by Rev. Edward Collins, rector of Illogan, in Cornwall. For 152 years his direct descendants were rectors of the same parish. Since then the Collins family has given over a hundred rectors and vicars to the church. Rev. Stephen Newcome became curate of Girton in 1560. His son Stephen left several children, three of whom became clergymen. From the oldest of these sons descended Daniel Newcome, dean of Gloucester; William Newcome, archbishop of Armagh, and a number of rectors and vicars. From the second of the three brothers also descended clergymen of the Established church, while from the third, Henry Newcome, of Manchester, the celebrated Presbyterian minister and ejected vicar of Gawsworth, descended a line of clergy that even now, after a lapse of a couple of hundred years, is in a flourishing condition.

Two brothers, George and Edward Synge, were respectively bishops of Cloyne and Cork during the Seventeenth century. In the next generation, two of the sons of Bishop Edward became, the one dean of Kildare, the other archbishop of Tuam. The archbishop's two sons became bishop of Elphin and bishop of Killaloe and died in 1771, when the Episcopal honors of the family ceased, though several later members were clergymen.

In modern times there have been in England three families who have devoted themselves to the church and have deservedly attained high rank in it. These families are the Wilberforces, the Wadsworths and Bickersteths. The first is of quite recent clerical origin, but already includes two bishops. The second includes a dean of Christ church, a bishop of Lincoln, a bishop of St. Andrews and bishop of Salisbury. To the third belonged the late bishop of Ripon, the bishop of Exeter, the bishop of Japan, Edward Bickersteth, an evangelical preacher of considerable eminence and the dean of Lichfield.—Chambers' Journal.

Ropes Used in Belgian Mines.

The interesting fact appears in a report made to the French government that hemp or aloes ropes are almost exclusively used for all depths of shaft in Belgian mines. According to the statement made, the manufacturers warrant the ropes to serve 1½ to 2½ years, and in case of their failing in a shorter period, one-twelfth to one-twenty-fourth of their cost is deducted for every month short of their stipulated duration.

It is further stated that steel wire ropes, when used for mining purposes, should be made of crucible steel, having a breaking strength of seventy to seventy-six tons per square inch, that large pulleys are more necessary for wire than for hemp ropes, the smallest diameter permissible being 1,300 to 1,400 times the diameter of the wire in the rope if of iron and 2,000 times if of steel. Wire ropes are best made with a hemp cord, being more flexible.—New York Sun.

Literary "Shop" Talk.

Everybody wants a change, and I think no one appreciates it more than those who write. There is such a quantity of what one would call "amiable selfishness" in human nature, however, that it is difficult for a popular novelist to get away from the adulations and compliments of sincere but inconsiderate friends.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Where the Weather is Hot.

The hottest region on the earth's surface is on the southwestern coast of Persia, on the border of the Persian gulf. For forty consecutive days in the months of July and August the mercury has been known to stand above 100 degs. in the shade, night and day; and to often run up as high as 130 degs. in the middle of the afternoon.—Philadelphia Press.

A Letter from George Eliot.

A letter written by Mary Anne Evans (George Eliot) to a school friend while both were young women, has lately been published for the first time in England. In this she says she has heard an oratorio, "where," she adds, "I think I said farewell to all such expenditures of time and money. I think nothing can justify the using of an intensely interesting and solemn passage of Scripture, as a rope dancer uses her rope, or as a sculptor the pedestal on which he places the statue, that is alone intended to elicit admiration. I think, too, that it is the duty of Christians individually to throw their weight, however dustlike, into that scale which as Christians they must profess to wish to preponderate—not to take the low ground of considering things merely with relation to existing circumstances, and graduating their scale of holiness to the temperature of the world, but to aim as perseveringly at perfection as if they believed it to be soon attainable. And if so, I ask myself can it be desirable, and would it be consistent with millennial holiness for a human being to devote the time and energies that are barely sufficient for real exigencies on acquiring expertness in trills, cadences, etc.?

"The only argument that seems to me to have any speciousness in favor of such exhibitions of skill is that without them we should never have an opportunity of appreciating the beautiful powers of the human voice when carried to their highest point of improvability. But by once admitting such reasoning we disarm ourselves of every weapon against opera dancing, horse racing—nay, even against intemperance, which I have heard justified on the plea that since Providence has sent luxuries we are contemning them by abstinence."

Getting Rich by Saving.

"What would be your advice to a young man starting out in life as a means of success?" Senator Leland Stanford was asked.

"First, be industrious; second, have a settled plan; third, be everlastingly persistent in both. These applied to fair ability will win, for all legitimate business is profitable in the end. There is one class of men only who die rich. They are those who always save something out of what they earn. There is a laborer in my employ who has followed these principles for thirty-three years on forty dollars a month and board. He had $6,000 to commence with. He is still at work and worth over $200,000.

"Most men who have the ability to save die rich. Not many die rich who make great sums of money fast. They may make ninety-nine successful speculations, but in the hundredth one, when the risk is in proportion to their daring and their wealth, they lose it all.

"Mr. Cook, financial agent of our government, once told me that the largest check he ever saw was one drawn by Daniel Drew for $7,000,000 in payment for government bonds. I saw a red auction flag over Daniel Drew's door."—New York World.

The Most Useful of Animals.

The ox can be put to a greater number of uses than any other animal. It is utilized in the following ways: Its flesh for food, its blood for clarifying wines, sugar, etc., manure, and in Sweden for food; its horns for lanterns, combs, handles for umbrellas, drinking cups, etc., hoofs for buttons, and also made into glue; bones for margarine and by potters, cutters, glue makers, sugar refiners and assayers, and by farmers for manure. About 2,000,000 ring bones are used in Sheffield annually for knife handles, etc.

Hides and skins are tanned into leather, the offal for gold beaters' skin, bladders, sausage skins, tripe, etc.; hair for plaster, felt roofing, covering boilers and steampipes, etc. The heart, head and feet are sold to families and hotel keepers; the stomach is cleaned and sold to tripe cooks; the lungs and liver are readily sold, and the fat for tallow.—Spare Moments.

Jupiter's Fifth Satellite.

It turns out that a fifth satellite of Jupiter was seen in 1664. At a meeting of the Massachusetts Historical society a communication was received from the Hon. R. C. Winthrop, calling attention to the fact that the sixteenth volume of the society proceedings contains a detailed account of a supposed fifth satellite of Jupiter, observed at Hartford, in New England, on Aug. 6, 1664, by Governor John Winthrop, of Connecticut, who, however, in communicating this to the Royal society, did not claim it as an original discovery, but stated that he had previously met with it in a work on "Natural Philosophy" by John Phociliden.—Boston Herald.

The Prince's Card.

The heir apparent of the English throne uses, be it chronicled with bated breath, a card "a model of neatness," the size of a gentlewoman's visiting card, having printed in the center in neat block letters simply the words, "Prince of Wales." What does any gentleman use but a neat card with his name upon it? Was it fancied the royal Englishman used a playing card?—Her Point of View in New York Times.

BRAINS VERSUS BEAUTY.

Women Noted for Intellectual Power Who Are Hopelessly Plain.

One of the puzzling things difficult of solution in life is the persistency of divorce between brains and beauty. While it by no means follows that a homely woman is always brainy, or a pretty one invariably devoid of intelligence, still it is true that of all women noted for powerful intellect few have been otherwise than hopelessly plain. Mme. De Stael, the intellectual prodigy of her day, before whose wit even the great Napoleon quailed, and of whom he said, "She has shafts which would hit a man if he were seated on a rainbow," was totally without feminine grace save only the charm of a low, melodious voice. One famous word portrait describes her as a "priestess of Apollo, with dark eyes illumined by genius, and marked features expressive of a destiny superior to that of most women," which is of course only an ornamental way of saying that she was not fair.

George Eliot's biographers seldom attempt personal description, and shirk the issue by saying that she had "large, massive, homely features," which were at rare intervals softened by a smile of great beauty. Her head was colossal and masculine, her hair coarse, brown and bushy, her brow high and full, but her body was frail and delicate. And this powerful woman, whose writings have influenced all modern thought, was given over to the woman's weakness of shedding tears incessantly. It is hard to reconcile the fact with her other characteristics, and it, like her second marriage, are things her admirers like to forget. Lady Mary Montague, she of the exquisite letters, was a most untidy and slovenly woman, with a face hideously scarred by smallpox and distressingly homely. She said herself that the only reason she was glad she was a woman was because she would never have to marry one.

Margaret Fuller was quite the reverse of pretty, save for her graceful carriage, though her admirers were given to rapsodizing about her neck with its swanlike curves. An interesting fact about literary women and one pleasing no doubt to brunettes is this, that almost all intellectual stars of feminine lore were dark in type.—New York Sun.

Salvation Army Women.

The mother of the Salvation Army was the wife of General Booth. She died several years ago. Four of her daughters and two daughters-in-law are active in the work. Kitty, the eldest child, now a marshal and the wife of Mr. Clibborn, has developed the army in Switzerland and France. Emma, now Mrs. Tucker, has found her field in India. Eva and Lucy, both still young, promise in time to rival their elder sisters in usefulness. Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth is the daughter of a clergyman, and was treated with great disfavor by her family when she first enlisted in this work. For a time she served in Switzerland, and was subjected to much persecution.

As the wife of General Booth's second son and director of much of the army work in the United States, she is widely and favorably known in this country. Mrs Bramwell Booth is the wife of the general's oldest son. Before marriage she was a Miss Soper. Her great work has been the foundation of "rescue homes," which are the most successful establishments of the kind ever started in Great Britain. She is a woman of fine linguistic and literary accomplishments.—London Letter.

An Excellent Idea.

"Keep close to me," a mother was overheard to say on a ferryboat Wednesday to her two children of apparently nine and twelve. "If, however," she went on, "we should get separated at any time today, don't get frightened. Both of you have money; get a policeman to help you through the crowd and start you for this ferry. Then take the cars home. Ask your way often, and though the experience may not be pleasant you will come out all right."

This struck a listener as very sensible. Children at all grown should have possible emergencies of this sort suggested and arranged for, instead of, as is often the case, being taught to consider that to be alone in the city's streets is a hopeless and alarming strait.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Rewarded by the Queen.

Queen Victoria, when a girl, was passionately fond of climbing walls and trees. One day at Malvern she climbed a tall apple tree, and was unable to get down. A young man named Davis, a gardener, was attracted by her cries, got a ladder and brought her down in safety. Deeply grateful, she opened her purse and presented him with a guinea. Davis nicely framed it, and ever since has been proud to tell the tale and show the piece of gold that the queen gave him so many years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

The Pope Interfered.

During the reign of Louis XV the bodices of French and Italian ladies were cut with so liberal a hand that the pope interfered and threatened the wearers with excommunication. The menace had no effect.—Exchange.

THE SUPERVISORS.

Dr. R. P. Smith Chosen for County Physician.

The Supervisors met on Thursday morning of last week at the Court House, Santa Rosa, all the members being present.

On motion of Mr. Sales, the resignation of Dr. J. F. Boyce, County Physician, was accepted, such resignation to take effect Wednesday, February 8th, 1893.

The applications of Dr. K. Urban and R. P. Smith for County Physician were then read and voted upon, and the result was that Dr. R. P. Smith was elected by a vote of 4 to 1. He was therefore declared duly elected County Physician for 1893, the salary to remain the same, namely, $1400 per annum, and the physician to furnish all the prescriptions.

P. H. Thompson, the new member from Sonoma Township, has made a good beginning and if we are not greatly mistaken in the man he will make one of the best Supervisors that ever represented Sonoma and Vallejo Townships on the Board, in so far as the interests of his people are concerned, and the taxpayers of his district can rest easy for the next two years at least.

On motion of that gentleman the county road near Glen Ellen was changed so as to pass over the lands of Kohler & Frohling, and a warrant for $50 was drawn in favor of the above firm to aid in the construction of the road.

The usual monthly bids were passed upon and allowed after which the board adjourned until Friday, January 6th.

FRIDAY, January 6th.

The Board of Supervisors met this morning but held only a short session in which no business of special importance was transacted. They took a recess to make a visiting tour of inspection to some of the bridges in the northern part of the county.

SATURDAY, January 7th.

The Board met in the Supervisor's room at 9 A. M., all members present, Chairman Mead presiding.

On motion of Supervisor Joost, the urgent necessity being shown, it was decided to re-build the "Houser bridge" across the south fork of the Gualala river without giving the usual notice, in accordance with section 2713 of the California Road Law.

H. A. Richardson was then given the contract to rebuild the bridge for $850.

The reports of the Auditor and Treasurer for the month of December, 1892, were examined and found to be correct, and on motion of Supervisor Sales, were approved.

At 12 o'clock M. the Board adjournen until Monday January 9th.

MONDAY, January 9th.

On motion of Supervisor Hall, the consideration of applications was taken up. M. M. Speegle was the only applicant for superintendent of the county farm, and was unanimously elected to fill that place.

For the position of county gardner there were four applicants, D. W. Meldrum, F. H. Hankle, W. T. Farly and M. H. Dunn. The result of the voting was: Meldrum 3, Dunn 1, Farley 1. Mr. Meldrum was therefore duly elected. The new gardner is to take charge of the grounds Feb. 1st, and is required to furnish plants, flowers, etc., without any additional expense to the county.

C. S. Mead, present incumbent, being the only seeker for the place of engineer of the courthouse was unanimously elected to discharge the duties of his position for another year.

W. H. Hassett and S. W. Wilson both desired to take charge of the courthouse. The voting stood 4 to 1 for Mr. Hassett, who was declared to be duly re-elected.

E. P. Philbrich had no competitor for the place of assistant janitor, and he was given the place to hold at the pleasure of the Board at a salary of $50 per month.

Mrs. T. B. Carrillo was unanimously chosen matron of the court house at a salary of $15 per month, commencing February 1st.

Motion of Supervisor Hall: In the matter of repairing the Geyserville bridge in Washington township, the Board having examined it and forty-six feet had been carried away by the recent flood, and it further appearing to this Board that said repairs will cost less than $500, and that the cheapest and best plan for repairing the said bridge will be to authorize the said road commissioner of Washington district to repair the same, I move that Supervisor J. A. Mead, ex-officio road commissioner, be instructed and hereby authorized to repair the Geyserville bridge with a sixty-foot span, similar in construction and of the same style as the other spans now in the said bridge, the cost thereof to be paid equally from the county general fund and the Washington road district fund.

The following Justices of the Peace were appointed: A. J. Blaney, Bodega township; J. L. Gibson, Redwood township; as the men elected at the recent election had failed to qualify.

The appointment of J. D. Barnett to superintend the burial of indigent ex-union soldiers, made September 12th, 1889, was revoked, and M. S. Davis was appointed in his place.

Motion of Supervisor Sales: I move that the Sonoma Democrat, a newspaper of general circulation, printed and published at Santa Rosa, Sonoma county, be and is hereby designated and selected as the official newspaper of said Sonoma county. Motion carried and so ordered.

On motion of Mr. Joost, and as contemplated in the new road law, the Auditor was instructed to set aside as a general road fund 5 per cent of all road money received.

Eugene Lander, a needy person of Santa Rosa was placed on the indigent list at $10 per month.

At 5 o'clock P. M. the Board adjourned to meet next morning at 9 o'clock.

TUESDAY, January 10th.

On motion of Supervisor Thompson the compensation of the members of the County Board of Horticultural Commissioners was reduced from $2.50 to $1 per diem for such time as they may be actually engaged in the performance of their duties.

On motion of Supervisor Sales Supervisor P. H. Thompson, ex-officio Road Commissioner, was authorized to proceed to repair the west end of Cooper bridge, in Sonoma road district. Repairs not to exceed $500; also to repair wooden bridge across Sonoma creek at San Luis; cost not to exceed $200.

On motion of Supervisor Sales road poll tax was fixed at $2.

ONE species of extortion practiced by San Francisco wholesalers on country merchants, is the charging of cartage for small shipments. If twenty country patrons send small orders to a metropolitan merchant and all are shipped at one time, the thrifty seller sends the whole batch to the depot or boat on a single truck at a cost of 50 cents, and charges each one of his customers with 50 cents "cartage," making a profit of $9.50 on cartage. A few firms in the bay city have discontinued this Shylockian practice, but nineteen-twentieths of the wholesale dealers charge their little "cartage" for transporting each six-bit order to the train or boat.—Visalia Delta.

To whiskey and cards is attributed the downfall of ex-County Clerk of Tuolumne Joseph Fitzgerald, who has just been arrested on the charge of embezzlement.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light house.

Mr and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the Cow Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a severe Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store.

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later took off more than half my hand. Then the sore broke out on my arm, came out on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of one eye, also on my right arm. Doctors said it was the

they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars! Just think of what a return I got for that investment! A thousand per cent? Yes, many thousand. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I

HOOD'S PILLS do not weaken, but aid digestion and tone the stomach. Try them. 25c.

An Enemy Baffled.

There is an enemy with whom thousands are familiar all their lives, because they are born with a tendency to biliousness, with this enemy they are constantly battling with ineffectual weapons. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will baffle it. Mere purgatives will not reform a disordered condition of the liver indicated, not by constipation alone, but also by sick headache, yellowness of the skin and eye balls, nausea, furred tongue and uneasiness, more particularly upon pressure on the right side, upon and below the short ribs. Avoid drastic purgatives which gripe and weaken the intestines, and substitute this world famous anti-bilious cordial, which likewise removes malarial, stomachic and kidney complaints rheumatism and nervousness. As a laxative of the bowles, painless but effectual, it improves appetite, sleep and the ability to digest, and possesses the additional advantage of a standard tonic.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending up on a healthy condition of the vital organs. If the Liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a Pinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and Tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion sold at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store. 50c per bottle.

I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take a bad cold, and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."—J. Cough

"For more than twenty-five years, I was a sufferer from lung trouble, attended with coughing so severe at times as to cause hemorrhage, the paroxysms frequently lasting three or four hours. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking four bottles, was thoroughly cured."—Franz Hoffman, Clay Centre, Kans.

La Grippe

"Last spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breast seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and no sooner had I began taking it than relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid and the cure so complete."—W. H. August Gerber, nephew of Martin Peter of Glen Ellen, died at the Grand Hotel, Santa Rosa, last Monday evening. The deceased was a excellent young man, aged 22 years and a native of Germany. The disease that carried him off was pneumonia. The funeral took place in Sonoma last Wednesday.

The Green Hinkston place is offered for sale in another column by the executor of the estate. Parties desiring to bid on the property should call on or address J. P. Rodgers or D. D. Hemmenway, Petaluma. As this property must be sold to close the estate it is possible to secure the same at a bargain.

Five or six large salmon trout, varying in weight from two to twelve pounds, were caught in the small creek which runs through the heart of town, last Monday. They had become landlocked in their efforts to reach the spawning grounds at the headwaters of Nathanson's creek, east of Sonoma, and were easily captured by scooping them up with the hands.

THIRTY-TWO SERVANTS.

A Big Family Allowance for Their Support.

Mrs. Bell of Glen Ellen, widow of the late Thos. Bell of San Francisco, has been allowed a family allowance of $2,000 out of her late husband's estate, which has been appraised at $1,500,000. The lady asked for $5,000 per month, but Judge Coffey of San Francisco, who heard the application, thought $2,000 sufficient, as the executor stated that owing to the depression of the value of silver, the estate being largely interested in silver-producing mines, the estate could not afford to pay $5,000 or even $2,000. Mrs. Bell admitted on the witness-stand that she employed twenty-two servants at her residence near this place and eight servants in her city residence in San Francisco.

The estate is said to owe half a million dollars. Among the creditors of the estate is the National Bank of D. O. Mills & Co., whose claim amounts to $65,000, and a claim of the Bank of California for $6,271.16. The heirs to the estate are the widow, Teresa, forty-three years of age, and six children, whose ages range from nineteen to seven years.

A Monument to Gen. Vallejo.

J. C. Sims, Assemblyman from this district, will endeavor to secure an appropriation of $10,000 from the legislature for the erection of a statue of the late Gen. M. G. Vallejo of this place. As General Vallejo was the founder of Sonoma and it was here that he lived, died and was buried, no more appropriate place could be selected to erect the statue than in the eight-acre Plaza which lies in the very heart of Sonoma, and which he dedicated to public use over half a century ago. Should Mr. Sims be successful in procuring the appropriation we trust he will also interest himself in securing for this place the site for the statue. Our Plaza, which is covered with evergreen trees and flowering shrubs, is one of the largest in the interior of the State, and a monument erected in the center of the same would show off to better advantage than in any other one place that we know of.

A Five Thousand Dollar Suit.

W. B. Pless of this city has commenced proceedings in the Superior Court in San Francisco against the estate of the late Dr. Washington M. Ryer to recover the sum of $5,000 balance due him from deceased according to an accounting, which he had with Dr. Ryer on May 1st, 1892. One month after, and before the account had been settled, Ryer died. Suit is now brought by Mr. Pless against the executors of the estate, which is worth many thousands of dollars, to recover the above sum.

Cooper vs. Cooper.

The divorce case of Cooper vs. Cooper, which has been on trial before Judge Crawford in Santa Rosa the past week, still drags slowly along. The case is being held with closed doors. A large number of witnesses, friends of both parties, have been subponed to testify. The parties to the suit are prominent residents of Sonoma Valley. The suit was brought by Mrs. Cooper on the grounds of incompatibility of temperment—that is to say, husband and wife, who have been married three or four years, cannot agree.

Death of Mrs. Knight.

Mrs. Knight, wife of Luther Knight, died at her home near Glen Ellen last Monday morning after an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Knight was the mother of Mrs. J. V. Miner. The deceased during her residence in this valley, covering a peroid of six years, had made many warm friends by her gentle disposition. The remains were taken to San Francisco for interment.

A $40,000 Dredger.

W. B. Pless is at present in Stockton making arrangements for the building of a dredger to cost $40,000. It will be the biggest dredger ever constructed in this State. Its capacity will be 10,000 cubic yards of earth a day. When completed it will be used in constructing levees on the Sacramento river.

The Boggs Carriger Murder Case.

The trial of Boggs Carriger will commence in the Superior Court at Santa Rosa on Monday, February 6th. The case will be tried by Judge Dougherty.

The attention of ladies is called to the advertisement of Jas. Ruffner, which appears in these columns. He has made a big cut in ladfes and misses French and American kid shoes, and is almost giving away his goods.

THE ITALIAN CUTTING SCRAPE.

Another Man Bound Over to Appear Before the Superior Court.

C. Galli, charged with being a participant in the cutting scrape in this place on Christmas night, had his examination before Judge Cheney last Thursday. The accused was represented by Attorney J. P. Rodgers and the people by District Attorney Seawell. The evidence went to show that Galli had been severely cut in the groin by one of the participants. The wounded man in turn drew a knife and in defending himself cut a fellow countryman by the name of Perazzo in the face. Judge Cheney held the accused over to appear before the Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with bonds set at $500, which he furnished.

It will be recollected that three men were cut in the affray, two of whom, Ubaldi and Galli, will be tried for assault with a deadly weapon. The other man, Perasso, who was an innocent party, it is claimed was assaulted by the other wounded men and cut twice on the face. Felicci Clerite, another alleged participant, who escaped without a scratch, has also been held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, it being claimed by the prosecution that he cut Ubaldi and Galli. The case is a badly mixed up affair as all drunken brawls usually are. All the parties are out on bail. Four trials will be the outcome of the affair and a heavy cost entailed upon the county in conducting the prosecution, and if District Attorney Seawell secures a conviction in any one of the cases it will astonish the average citizen of a town where once upon a time a man's throat was cut and his life taken, and his slayer was not even arrested for the crime, although he never made any attempt to escape, and quietly walked out of Sonoma a week after the killing.

Death of an Old Resident.

P. H. Vollmar, for many years a resident of Embarcadero, where he was engaged in the hotel business, died at his home yesterday morning, after an illness of several weeks. The deceased was an upright and honest man in all his business dealings and as a landlord was polite and obliging. He located at Embarcadero in 1872 and engaged in the hotel business, which he successfully continued up to the day of his death. Mr. Vollmar was a pioneer of the State and underwent many hardships in the early mining days, which to a considerable extent undermined a naturally robust constitution. He was a member in good standing of Sonoma Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F., under whose auspices his funeral will be held to-morrow. The deceased leaves a wife and daughter and a host of friends to mourn his loss. He was aged 57 years and a native of Germany.

Foggy Weather.

The weather the past week in Sonoma Valley has been characterized by heavy fogs, something very unusual in these parts. Yesterday morning, however, the fog gave way to clouds and there was a slight precipitation. The chances are that in a day or two there will be a heavy rain storm.

At 11:30 o'clock, to the lively strains of a march, the young guests filed into the dining room where delicious refreshments were served, not least enjoyable of which, was the steaming hot coffee. Miss Natalie received many handsome presents. Those present were the following: Mrs. A. F. Haraszthy, Mrs. M. J. REMINGTON.

Glen Ellen, Jan. 12, 1893.

The wonderful popularity attained by Hood's Sarsaparilla Calendar last year will be repeated by Hood's Household Calendar-Almanac for 1893, just published. A happier combination of calendar and almanac, of beauty and utility, of art and advertising, has seldom been produced. The lovely picture of "The Young Discoverers" lithographed in many delicate colors, will be welcome everywhere, while the pad is attractively printed in colors but in sharp, plain figures. Copies may be obtained of the druggists, or by sending six cents in stamps for one copy, or ten cents for two, to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Some Peculiar Rodents.

Death Valley, California, notwithstanding its suggestive name, is the abode of more curious and wonderful specimens of animal creation than any place of its size within the limits of the United States. The oddest of these creatures, perhaps, is a species of rodent called the "kangaroo rat," which travels from place to place by executing a series of jumps or springs, almost in exact imitation of his namesake of the Australian wilds. Then, too, as though it were nature's purpose to make a miniature of every large piece of handiwork, the same locality furnishes the "kangaroo mouse," a counterpart and perfect pocket edition of the rat. Besides these kangaroo rodents there are at least two other odd specimens of the same genus in the Californian Valley of Death—the "pocket mouse" with little pouches inside his mouth for stowing away surplus food, and the "scorpion mouse," which feeds wholly upon scorpions.—St. Louis Republic.

Amount of Salt in All Oceans.

Expert hydrographers and others of a curious turn of mind and a faculty for figuring on things that seem impossible of solution have concluded that the waters of the oceans and seas of our globe hold not less than 60,000,000,000,000,000 tons of salt in suspension! If these figures are correct and the oceans should be entirely dried up, there would be a deposit of salt 450 feet deep over every foot of the great basin! If taken out and spread upon what is now dry land it would give us a salt covering nearly 1,500 feet thick.—St. Louis Republic.

The Art of Drawing Wire.

The art of drawing wire was not practiced until the Fourteenth century, or introduced into this country until the Seventeenth century, all wire made previously having been made by hammering into rounded lengths narrow strips of metal cut from plates previously beaten out.—Chambers' Journal.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

NOTHING LIKE IT

Its peculiar efficacy is due as much to the process and skill in compounding as to the ingredients themselves. Take it in time. It checks diseases in the outset, or if they be advanced will prove a potent cure.

FOR WHOSE BENEFIT

No Home should be Without It.

It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. All who lead sedentary lives will find it the best preventive of and cure for Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Piles and Mental Depression. No loss of time, no interference with business while taking. For children it is most innocent and harmless. No danger from exposure after taking. Cures Colic, Diarrhœa, Bowel Complaints, Feverishness and Feverish Colds. Invalids and delicate persons will find it the mildest Aperient and Tonic they can use. A little taken at night insures refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and sweetens the breath.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

THE UNSETTLED CLAIM.

Story of One Man Who Had Patience and Waited for a Railroad Company.

I never knew when the accident happened. It was on the books of the railroad company when I first went to work for the attorney of the road.

"Well, let that go over another year," were his instructions to me whenever I would refer to the matter and urge that it be settled.

The man used to hobble in the office about once in six months and ask about the case. He had lost his leg in a smashup, and had been promised, again and again, after the fashion of corporations, that his case would be settled.

"In a little while now," would be the lawyer's words, "we will be getting to your case; you must be patient, you know; there are so many ahead of you."

Year after year every six months the old fellow used to come down to the city to see if we were ready to settle.

"We are not liable; but we will do something for you," would be his greeting from the astute railroad attorney.

One day he hobbled into the general offices, and declared that he would not leave unless he was attended to.

"Your claim is for $20,000?" asked the lawyer kindly.

"That's it; every decision of the courts has been agin you; it is now nine years since you told me you would settle. My wife has died. Poor soul, I thought some of the money would do her good. All the old neighbors I had are dead and gone. The boys have growned up. Lightnin struck the barn. Fire swept away all I had. Jim, my favorite son, went down with liquor."

"We will settle," said the lawyer kindly, "but you must be patient."

And the years swept by, and the lawyer himself went to his reward. The road changed hands, was sold under a mortgage and was reorganized. New officers filled the places of the old ones. A newer life and a newer generation held sway.

They said the claim was to be settled.

Yes.

Well, that funeral you just saw passing the door from the county poor farm was the last of earth for old Abner Coles, who lived and died without justice between man and man.—New York Recorder.

Faithful Over a Few Things.

Every student of history remembers Captain Perry's dispatch after the battle of Lake Erie—a sentence terse and yet glowing—"We have met the enemy, and they are ours."

Every one remembers the great and significant result of the fight, but few perhaps have heard of one humble worker who served his country just as truly there as if he had been on deck amid shot and shell, earning glory as well as the reward of a good conscience.

Just as the ships were going into action the mate of the Lawrence said to Wilson Mays, who was ill and unfit for service:

"Go below, Mays; you are too weak to be here."

"I can do something, sir," was the stout reply.

"What can you do?"

"I can sound the pump, sir, and let a strong man go to the guns."

Then he sat down by the pump, and thus released for active service a man who had more muscle, and when the fight was over there he was found with a bullet through his heart.—Youth's Companion.

Proving the Convexity of the Earth.

An experiment was made a hundred years ago or so on the Bridgewater canal in England to prove the convexity of the earth. At intervals of five miles in a straight stretch of the canal three posts were driven until their tops were precisely six feet above the surface of the water. Then careful measurements and observations were made from either end, with the result that the top of the center post was found to be some distance above a line drawn from top to top of the first and last posts.

The experiments were repeated a number of times, always with the same result. This proves for ordinary persons that the earth is convex, but scientists reached the same conclusions by more scientific ways. Besides, if the earth is concave, what becomes of the sun at night?—New York Sun.

The Present Age.

"This is an age," says a profound thinker, "of weak convictions, paralyzed intellects and growing laxity of opinion." There is an intense struggle for bare existence ever going on, but the fittest do not always survive. There are many wise men, but of many a wise man will it never be said,

This fellow's wise enough to play the fool,
And to do that well demands high wit,

while the foolish one, in cap and bells, apes wisdom, and, save in his own country, is not without honor.—Nineteenth Century.

HE AND HIS MONEY LOOKED FRESH.

But the Bunko Men Found That the Appearance of Each Was Deceptive.

He looked as green as a persimmon in August and as simple as Simon found in nursery lore. Podunk atmosphere gathered about him and he seemed timid as a hare. Ill fitted for Chicago did he seem as the queer looking clothing to his gaunt, ungainly and altitudinous form. Hesitatingly he accepted an invitation from a chipper looking chap to visit a resort where he could get two dollars for one dollar without any trying on his part, and he shrank away from a sympathetic individual who whispered to him that he was about to enter a den of thieves.

Stammeringly he acquiesced in all that his guide told him, and his ox shaped eyes took on a more innocent gaze as he listened to wondrous stories of big money made by sundry parties that had been led by said guide.

When called upon to put up his money he drew out from an inner pocket a comfortable looking roll of greenbacks and falteringly set up a five dollar note. Timidly he drew down the winnings (ten dollars), and was about to turn away, his inexpressive face sillier than ever, when his guide whispered him he ought to try his hand again.

As clay in the potter's hand he seemed, and next time, at outside suggestion, he put up twenty dollars and again was winner.

The Quincy street gang of five or six who were present eyed one another with decided satisfaction. Not often did so gullible a victim fall into their hands, and they could afford to let him win several times before scooping him in completely. What nice, crisp bills he did have, to be sure, and he couldn't possibly have less than $300 or $400. The pals nudged one another and smiled knowingly. He pulled in again and took in forty dollars, which he stowed away somewhere about his person. Then he said sweetly to his chaperon:

"Bleeged to yer, 'n reckon I'll be a-goin."

"Don't do it. You are in sweet luck. Try yer hand ag'in."

The reticent green assented, and following his guide's direction slapped up fifty dollars. Again he was winner, and with a sillier expression on his face than ever turned about. What a plastic youth he was! The guide had but to speak, and he did.

"Put up a hundred," said his mentor.

And forthwith it came and forthwith he won $100.

That was the last. Thenceforward greeny lost one time after another until finally, with a stupid stare, he turned to his companion and declared himself "busted clean."

"No, no. You've some of your winnings left. Try your luck once more," said the mentor.

But greeny was obdurate. Play he would not, but edged toward the door; when an attempt was made to head him off he sprang forward like a scared rabbit and was soon kiting down the street and out of sight.

The shrewd gamblers counted costs. In their possession were $450 in bright, new bills. The awkward stranger had taken away with him $360. It now occurred to one of them that he invariably stowed away his winnings and only played his new bills. Examination showed every one of them to be a counterfeit. Biters do get bitten sometimes, for this is an o'er true tale.—Chicago Mail.

A Story of Carlyle's Judgment.

Among the many good stories told concerning Carlyle this is not the least good: "Carlyle took a friend and a much younger man out walking with him, and in his usual way indulged in a monologue in which nevertheless his companion was much interested. Once or twice, however, the friend ventured to put in a word or two of objection in regard to something said by Carlyle. This annoyed Carlyle intensely, and when they reached home he turned upon his companion and addressed to him the following warning: 'Young man, I'd have ye to know that ye've the capacity for being the greatest bore in Europe.' The poor man had hardly spoken a dozen words, but since these had been critical, they had made him seem to Carlyle a potential bore of colossal proportions."

"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Boschee's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

J. F. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior. ®

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would act violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed, otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect D. S. M'GILLIS.

F. G. Nagle

SOLD OUT!

NAGLE IN COURT.

In the Justice's Court of Santa Rosa Township, Sonoma County, California.

J. W. RAGSDALE, Plaintiff, vs. F. G. NAGLE, Defendant.

The plaintiff for cause of action against the defendant, alleges: That on the 16th day of November, 1888, said defendant, F. G. Nagle, received from G. W. Call the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, the property of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau; that of said money said defendant, Nagle, returned to said Bureau the sum of $20 only, and retained, and ever since has retained, the balance of said $100 to-wit, $80, for his own use, and that no part of said $80 has ever been paid; that said Bureau assigned said claim to plaintiff.

For a further and separate cause of action plaintiff alleges: That defendant is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $80 for money had and received from G. W. Call, November 16th, 1888, for the use and benefit of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau, which claim has been assigned to the plaintiff, and that no part of the same has ever been paid.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for a judgment against defendant for the sum of $80 and costs.

RUTLEDGE & PRESSLEY, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

Dec. 9, 1891, complaint filed, summons issued and served. Dec. 15 default and judgment entered against defendant for $80 and costs. Dec. 16th, Nagle pays judgment.
